1

Open the tube & gently pull out the wall sticker. There may be some creases this is normal. Use a credit card/applicator to remove any air bubbles or creases from the sticker.

2

Apply a few pieces of masking tape to the top of your wall sticker to create a hinge (As Shown). Measure up where you want to place your wall sticker. When you are happy, attach to the wall by the masking tape.

3

Keep the transfer tape away from your wall. When you are ready and keeping the transfer tape tense start to push it into the wall as shown. Using a credit card/applicator start to rub over the application tape, working down & out taking your time.

4

Start to remove the transfer tape (Suggest from a top corner). Take this process very slow and pull the transfer tape downwards but try to avoid pulling away from the wall. If the sticker stays on transfer tape push back up and push your credit card over the affected area and then retry. Finally, work your credit card or applicator over the transferred wall sticker and wipe down with a soft cloth.

HOW TO REMOVE YOUR WALL STICKERS?

You will need

- A hairdryer
- A little patience

Follow these steps

- 1) Turn on your hairdryer at the lowest setting to begin with. Start with a small section of the sticker, holding the hairdryer between five and eight inches away from the wall, and test the temperature of the surface with your hand every few second. When it feels warm to the touch, switch the hairdryer off – if the adhesive heats up too much it'll become tacky and may not come away when you remove the vinyl wall decal.
- 2) Now gently peel back a corner of the sticker. It should come easily away from the wall; if it doesn't, bring the hairdryer back for a few more seconds and try again.
- 3) Continue peeling the decal off the wall, applying the heat from the hairdryer to each section as needed. Work slowly to avoid causing damage to the paint underneath – this is where that patience comes in, especially if you're trying to learn how to remove wall quote decals which are likely to have a more complex shape or design.
